

Notice how narrow and well defined this space is, and how people seek out a place to sit in the shade. Street trees not only provide a physical barrier from the street, but also shade in the warm weather.

An example of mixed use, zero lot line buildings. This long, linear space includes a series of edges: moving vehicles, parked vehicles, street trees, light poles, meters, walkway and finally building facades.

Other than the parking, "F" Road could take on this look.
